—and Hon. John S. Wells was accordingly declared unanimously elected President.

Mr. Wells upon taking the chair addressed the Senate as follows :

Senators :—You will please accept my grateful acknowledgements for the honor which you have conferred by selecting me for the presiding officer of this branch of the Legislature. It will be my aim to perform the duties faithfully and impartially, and I hope that I may succeed to your satisfaction.

In the performance of our legislative duties, questions may be presented of difficulty and perhaps embarrassment, but our guides and limits are plainly and distinctly expressed in the Constitution of the United States and of this State. The former, with the laws which shall be made in pursuance thereof, is declared to be the supreme law of the land, and that the judges in every State shall be bound thereby, anything in the Constitution or laws of any State to the contrary notwithstanding. The laws, then, which we can lawfully enact, must of necessity harmonize with the rights of the General Government, as expressed in the Constitution ; and so long as National and State legislation shall be confined to constitutional limits, the splendid theory of our government must continue to commend itself to the wise and good everywhere.

The existing laws of New Hampshire and the administration of justice within this State are well calculated to restrain vice and give confidence and security to the industrious and virtuous ; and when we can so truthfully point to the morality, general intelligence, thrift, quiet, and law-abiding principles of our citizens, I believe we may justly regard the past legislation of our State as a light to our path which we may follow with safety.

Wells, President of the Senate, made proclamation as follows:

And I here present your Excellency a copy of the Constitution of this State, as your guide in the discharge of your official duties."

His Excellency then made the following

ADDRESS:

Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Representatives:

The circumstances under which I have the honor of again meeting the Legislature of the State will furnish some apology, I trust, for the brief and cursory review of our affairs that will be presented in the address which established usage requires on this occasion.

The labors of your present session will, probably, be neither arduous nor protracted. It is my impression that a legislative assembly has seldom come together with so few matters of grave importance within the sphere of their ordinary and appropriate duties, soliciting their attention. I have perceived no indication that public expectation is looking to you, at this time, for many essential changes in or additions to our present statutes. The few suggestions I have to offer, if they should be thought deserving your consideration, will make but little demand upon your time; and I am happy to believe that, without neglecting or postponing the necessary public business, you may be able to consult a judicious, and at this time a needful economy, by bringing your session to a close at an earlier day than usual.

In all popular governments, the condition of the treasury is always a matter of the deepest interest to the people.

None of his public acts subject the representative to so rigid a scrutiny, or to so strict an accountability, as those in which he calls for and appropriates the people's money.

The financial affairs of this State have been heretofore adverted to only as furnishing an occasion of congratulation for our escape from the dangers and embarrassments which have so often resulted to other States from an improvident use of their credit. Our legislation, partaking of the cautious and frugal character of our people, has, in general, limited our expenditures to the strictly legitimate objects of public necessity.

For the first time in many years the treasurer's report will exhibit a balance of indebtedness for the fiscal year to an amount considerably exceeding the small sum necessarily due at this period of the year, in anticipation of accruing revenue. The expenses of the convention to revise the Constitution, and various disbursements authorized in June session, 1850, have, together, constituted an unprecedented charge upon the treasury during the past year. With no more than the usual amount ordered to be raised by taxation for the use of the State, there have been payments which, in a comparison of the last with former years, may be classed as extraordinary, amounting to nearly $66,000. These consisted of the expenses of the convention, $40,000; payments under the militia act of 1850, $17,000; bounty on crows, under the act of 1850, $3,500; payments for N. H. Reports and Digest and to State Reporter, under resolution and act of 1850, $3,800; smaller items, $1,500.

The State debt at the commencement of the fiscal year was $20,997. At the close of the year it will be not far from $76,000, an increase within the year of about $55,000.

It will be readily seen that but for the extra expenditures just enumerated, the financial condition of the State would be more favorable now than at the close of last year, by at least $10,000, showing that the ordinary expenses of the State are, in proportion to its revenues, not on the increase.

The large sum required to satisfy the demands of the present militia laws will occasion, I think, very general surprise. I will not venture to anticipate the action of the Legislature, but if the treasury should be relieved, hereafter, of this heavy charge upon it, it is believed that the present State debt may be easily extinguished in from three to five years, by the ordinary revenues, without a resort to additional taxation.

The popular reception of the amendments proposed by the convention to revise the Constitution, is a remarkable incident in our history. Considering the character of that very respectable body, composed, as it is known to have been, of the most able and distinguished representatives of the various classes, occupations and interests in the State, and enjoying, perhaps, in as high a degree as any former political assembly in New Hampshire, the confidence of their constituents, it was not to have been anticipated that they would be so unfortunate in apprehending the wishes of the people as to fail in securing their acceptance of even one of the numerous amendments submitted for their approval.

It is apparent from this decisive expression of the popular will that the present Constitution is, in the main, entirely satisfactory to a large majority of the people; that the alterations demanded by them are few and obvious, and that they neither contemplated nor desired the extensive and radical changes proposed by the convention. This result also inculcates the instructive lesson, which may be useful for our guidance hereafter, that no material or important amendments to the Constitution can be expected to find acceptance with the people which are anything more than declaratory of their known sentiments, and that it is always unsafe to assume a knowledge of their opinions when they have not been distinctly pronounced. It would be an error to suppose that all the labor and expense bestowed on this unsuccessful attempt to improve the Constitution has been entirely lost. An occasional examination and discussion of the principles and forms of the fundamental law are not without their use, if they serve no other purpose than to bring more clearly to view the great merits of our old and well-tried Constitution; and to give the people another opportunity to re-affirm their strong and unabated attachment to it.

There are few States in the Union whose judiciary has established for itself a more elevated character, or where the administration of justice has been more expeditious or less expensive than in New Hampshire. And yet there is some ground for the complaint that justice is not, in all cases, administered here "promptly and without any delay." This is attributed mainly to the fact that the judicial force of the State, as at present arranged, is not equal to the labor required of it. The increase of our population, and the change in business consequent upon the multiplication of railroads and manufactures, have brought a corresponding increase and change in the business of the courts, and these are of a character to impose great additional labor upon the judges. Our chancery practice is still in its infancy, but the duties which it imposes upon the judges are, already, not inconsiderable, and are surely and steadily increasing. As a necessary consequence, the proper business of the superior court furnishes sufficient occupation to its members, and makes it exceedingly difficult for them to hold the terms of the court of common pleas as now established by law. An increase in the number of judges in the higher court would be of little advantage. It would do nothing towards hastening the business of the superior court, and would not meet the wants of the public in the court of common pleas. In the latter court, the delay and expense complained of are chiefly confined to the larger counties, and a partial remedy for them might be found by increasing the number of terms. Under the present arrangement, parties are often compelled, after several weeks attendance, to submit to a continuance of their cases, perhaps to await the same process at the next term.

I would respectfully propose, as an improvement upon the present arrangement of our courts, the creation of circuit judges, to hold a part or all of the terms of the court of common pleas; or to remodel that court so as to furnish it with new justices, with a limited jurisdiction, reserving the more important business for the judges of the superior court. Should something like this be done, the terms of the court of common pleas in the larger counties might be increased, and the judges of the superior court would then have time to attend in season to their own proper duties. It is believed that the saving of expense to the parties in any one of the larger counties would be greater than the cost of the proposed change.

Since the passage of the resolution of July, 1850, as much progress has been made in the publication of the decisions of the superior court, made prior to that date, as the severe pressure of other duties upon the judges, upon whom the preparation of those decisions devolved, would permit. Parts of volumes, equivalent to one volume and two thirds, have been published, or are in the hands of the printer. The publication of the new series of reports, provided for in the act establishing the office of State Reporter, is not yet commenced, there not having yet been a sufficient number of decisions to fill a volume. The requisite amount of matter will be supplied, and a volume published soon after the end of the summer circuit. It is already manifest that the present system of reporting possesses many advantages over the former one. Besides the very important one of securing the publication of the reports without delay and at regular intervals, the State will save something on each volume under the present contract made by the reporter, the labor of the judges will be diminished, while their compensation is increased, and the reports will be furnished to the State and to individuals at a much cheaper rate.

An expression of opinion upon the merits of the act of the last session of the Legislature, establishing the office of Commissioner of Common Schools in each county, would be at this time premature. Until the report of the Board of Education appears, it cannot be known what has been accomplished by the separate action of the Commissioners, or by them collectively, as a Board of Education. My own knowledge of the operation of the present system is limited to a small portion of the State, where the duties imposed upon the Commissioners have certainly been performed with great vigor and fidelity. No system can be thoroughly tested by one year's experience, and I would express the hope that the desire of change, or an impatience to view results which can only be the work of time, will not, in a matter of this importance, deny to the present one the advantages of a longer trial.

I have reason to believe that the administration of the affairs of the State Prison, during the past year, has been, in a remarkable degree, judicious and successful, whether in reference to the treatment and discipline of the convicts, or the pecuniary interests of the State. The prisoners have been fully and constantly employed under contract, and at satisfactory prices for their labor; and it will appear from the Warden's report that the institution has been so managed as to meet all the expenses, and show a surplus of profits amounting to near $1300. There are outstanding debts against the prison, incurred prior to July, 1850, amounting to near $2000, for which you will doubtless deem it proper to make immediate provision. The decayed and ruinous condition of the building on the north side of the prison yard renders it unfit for use as a workshop or store room. The late increase in the number of convicts has crowded the remaining shops to so uncomfortable a degree that I would ask you to consider the expediency of removing the old building referred to, and of erecting a new shop on its site. The cost of such a shop as would meet the present wants of the institution is estimated by competent mechanics at $2000.

I am informed that the experiment of employing the convicts in the cultivation of land outside the prison turns out to be unprofitable. The cost of superintending them, where the opportunity and temptation to escape are so great, raises the expense of these farming operations considerably above the income. Should this information be verified on inquiry, it would be better to dispose at once of all the land attached to the prison which is held for agricultural purposes; and apply the proceeds to improvements within the walls.

The report of the Trustees of the Asylum for the Insane, which will be laid before you, represents that institution to be in a highly flourishing and satisfactory condition. Its income has been sufficient to meet all its ordinary expenses, and to add something to the value of the establishment besides, in improvements of the lands and additions to the furniture and other property. Its means of usefulness will be greatly enlarged by the munificent bequest of the late Abiel Chandler, of Walpole, amounting, it is estimated, to not less than $25,000. For a more extended statement of the affairs of the asylum you are referred to the reports of the Superintendent and Trustees.

In compliance with a resolution of June session, 1849, I have sent a block of granite, with the name of the State inscribed upon it, to the Washington Monument Association. It was quarried and prepared at the capital of the State, and is a beautiful specimen of this characteristic production of New Hampshire.

Some of the political events of the past year, having an immediate bearing upon our Federal relations, and possibly upon the destinies of the Republic through all future time, will mark this period as an important epoch in the history of our country. The series of measures adopted by the last Congress for the final adjustment of the various delicate and complicated questions which had, from time to time, grown up out of the conflicting pretensions of the north and south upon the subject of slavery, were welcomed by the country as a happy, and nearly un hoped for, conclusion to an angry and dangerous controversy that had long disturbed the amicable relations between the States, and had at last threatened the very existence of the Union.

Notwithstanding these measures had the concurrent support and approval of our most eminent statesmen, and of the leading representatives of the great political parties and sectional divisions of the country, they were not, nor was it a reasonable expectation that they would be, entirely satisfactory to either the free or the slave States. But regarding them as the best result of the most earnest and patriotic efforts to preserve the peace and harmony of the Union ; believing, also, in the reality and imminence of the dangers from which they were designed to rescue it, and that they involved no humiliating compromise of interest or opinion, the people received them with such general demonstrations of joy and assent as to encourage a hope that the excitement which had so long and so injuriously agitated the country would subside. That hope was not altogether delusive. The violence of passion and prejudice has been gradually yielding to the spirit of conciliation, and we may rejoice again in the promise of security and tranquility that is before us ; we may congratulate ourselves that wise counsels and courageous and devoted patriotism have borne the Union out in safety from the midst of its perils. But it should be kept in mind that these experiments upon the strength and durability of the Union may be too often repeated. It is not invulnerable, and can only be preserved by the exercise of that unselfish and comprehensive patriotism to which it owes its existence.

The measures of compromise have now become a part of the statutes of the land, and every consideration of good faith and sound policy requires that they should be sustained. One of them is, I am sensible, painfully repugnant to the feelings of the north, but it is designed to fulfil a plain constitutional obligation, deliberately and unanimously assumed, with a full knowledge of its import, by those who framed the Constitution, and since affirmed and enforced by our highest political and judicial authorities.

We have just assumed our official responsibilities under a solemn pledge to support the Constitution of the United States. Does it not become us, under a deep sense of the obligations imposed on us, to be ready on all occasions to cast the weight of our influence and our example, whatever it may be, into the scale of the laws, the Constitution and the Union?

I cannot permit this occasion to pass, the last which my present relation to the State will afford me, without renewing my expressions of gratitude to the people and their representatives for the many proofs I have received of their confidence and favor, and for the indulgence with which they have accepted my humble efforts to serve them. In entering upon the closing term of my official service, I can at least pledge a sincere desire to know my duty, and my best efforts to perform it with fidelity.

After a motion has been decided, it shall be in order for any member who voted with the majority, or if the Senate be equally divided, any member voting on the side prevailing, to move for a reconsideration thereof, unless the bill, resolution, report, amendment or motion on which the vote was taken, has gone from the possession of the Senate; but no motion to reconsider shall be in order unless made the same day on which the vote was taken, or the next day after on which the Senate shall be in session; but no vote shall be reconsidered when a less number of members is present than when it passed.

15. Before any petition or memorial, addressed to the Senate, shall be received and read, a brief statement of the contents thereof shall be made by the member introducing the same.

20. The Senate may resolve itself into a committee of the whole at any time, on motion made for that purpose ; and in forming a committee of the whole, the President shall leave the chair and appoint a chairman to preside in committee. 29. All questions shall be put by the President, and each member of the Senate shall signify his assent or dissent by answering aye or no. If the President doubts, or a division is called for, the Senate shall divide. Those in the affirmative of the question shall first rise from their seats, and stand till they be counted, and afterwards those in the negative shall rise and stand till they be counted. The President shall then rise and state the decision of the Senate.

REPORT :

The joint committee on the State House and Yard having had the subject under consideration, have directed me to report the following :

At our appointment at the commencement of the present session of the Legislature, we found the external and some of the internal appearances in an unseemly and unhealthy condition ; the wells, with their fixtures, with the water closets, and generally all connected therewith much out of order, and not in a decent condition.

We directed the grass to be cut and disposed of. The pump on the north side of the yard was unfit for use, the handle and other appurtenances missing, and the pump itself unrepairable. We directed it removed and the mouth of the well closed with a wooden fixture, to be removed at pleasure in case of fire, &c. The south pump was found in better condition, though not without its faults. It has been repaired and a reservoir has been sunk, connected with a trough and lead pipe attached, to contain the surplus water.

The water closet and yard were in an indecent, unhealthy and dilapidated condition. We directed new gravelling of the yard, and fixtures on each side of the yard to be erected, communicating with the vault.

A brick box has been constructed in the cellar to deposit the ashes. Fire from this source is now put at rest. We have directed the ashes on hand to be put on land about the trees in the yard, that they may exhibit agricultural care and improvement.

We recommend that William Fisk, the present incumbent, be re-appointed keeper of the State House and State House Yard.

Cash received for board of patients discharged previous to June 1, 1850,
Appropriation for new wing. (refunded building committee,)
Cash received for articles sold,

Total amount received during the year,

An average number of something more than sixty persons have been aided from the appropriation of $1600, made at the last session of the Legislature. $398 28 of this appropriation was, on the first day of the present month, in the State Treasury, and consequently does not appear in this report. It has since been paid in to the Asylum, and passed to the receipts of the coming year. The number aided by this appropriation, limited as at present to about sixty, affords to each fifty cents per week, or twenty-six dollars per year. Should the number of applicants for aid increase, without a corresponding increase in the appropriation, the dividend to each patient must either be less, or some names must be stricken from the list of those aided.

All who are aided, are required to furnish for the inspection of His Excellency the Governor, proper certificates of their indigence and their insanity, that none be aided who were not deserving subjects.

The Institution will be enabled the coming year to support the indigent insane for $100 per year, exclusive of clothing. The influence which any appropriation that may be made by the State will have on the cost of support, may be seen by the following table :

Appropriation.	Average No. aided the present year.	Amount afforded each per week.	Am't afforded each per year.	Cost of board at the Asylum.	Cost to each patient.
$1600	61½	50 cents.	$26 00	$100	$74 00
